LIFE'S RAILROAD

Life indeed is like a railroad
Climbing up a mountain high
With its narrow winding passage
Leading on if we but try.

Time is short, yes, time is precious
Do not falter, do not fail,
Keep your hand upon the throttle
And your eye upon the rail.

Many trails, many troubles
Await to tempt you on your way,
Do not fail to heed a warning
Lest your train will go astray.

When our earthly toils are ended
When at last we've lived our while,
May our Father up in Heaven
Greet us with a joyous smile.

Family History

On this 29th day of September 1936, I, Sarah Ann Wittwer Waters Howell, will try to write up to the best of my ability what I know and have been able to find out about our ancestors, the Wittwers, who came from Switzerland. I am the oldest child of John Wittwer, who was born in Wimis, Canton Bern, Switzerland. My grandfather, whose name was also John, had married a Susan Studdler. Susan was born January 11, 1807, and died April 14, 1869. Both were born in Wimis, Canton Bern, Switzerland, and were partners in the belief that their progeny should live on, for they had a large family of eleven children. The oldest daughter, Susan, was married and had a son and daughter.

For years grandfather had a vision of getting his family to America, concerning which he had heard many and varied tales. His oldest son, Jacob, who was better known as "Uncle Jake," worked for a President Wisemiller. Having gleaned information from several reliable sources, there is evidence pointing to the fact that this president referred to, was President of Switzerland at that time. Wisemiller used to take Jake upon the side of a mountain and point out distant mountain peaks in an attempt to give him some idea of the spacious Ohio, that was to be their destination in the new world. Grandfather must have been considered quite wealthy among his own kin at that time, for he had a goodly herd of cattle and goats. Likewise, he had to be better off than the average to bring such a huge family across the ocean and then on to Ohio.

In the early part of the year 1850, my grandfather sold off everything but what they could take with them and made preparations for leaving. The oldest child, who happened to be named Susan after her mother, with her husband and two small children made up the entire party of sixteen. For ninety days they braved the waves in a frail sail ship before sighting New York. Father used to tell of times when an unusual sight, such as a big fish or whale, would attract the attention of all the passengers, causing them to rush to one side of the ship. When this occurred, the sailors would roll barrels of sand to the opposite side to keep the ship from tipping. After a long journey over land from New York to Ohio they settled in Ragersville, a tiny berg about seven miles from New Philadelphia, which has increased very little in population to this day.

Two weeks after reaching their destination, grandfather died of typhoid fever which he had contracted on the ship. Picture if you can, the predicament that grandmother faced with nine children under twenty years of age, in a strange country, speaking a strange language, with a few friends and practically no money. All the children attended the funeral, but from that time on these brothers and sisters were never all at the same place at the same time as long as they lived. One after another of the children were taken by families until only the two youngest were left. These she kept.

Aunt Susan, the oldest child, married Jacob Spring, then a stone mason. She got along fairly well with her family. Uncle Jacob, the oldest son, was about twenty-three, and my father, John, who was about nineteen, got work. Father got a place to learn the blacksmith trade. All but Jacob and Gottlieb learned a trade. Rudolph and Christian were tanners. Peter and David were shoemakers and all worked at their trades while young. Later, they bought farms and became well to do farmers before passing to their reward. We need not fear looking up the history of our ancestors, for there seems to be no horse thieves branching from the family tree. As for those who came into Nebraska in the late 1850's, we have pioneer history worthy of any puritan father. Six boys and aunt Lizzie all forced into the west. Married there, and lived the rugged life of enforced danger and hardship. All but my father were married in Nebraska.

Father was nineteen when they came to America. Uncle Dave was two. This indicates that the family came to this country in 1850. Aunt Susan and family and uncle Jake went with father to Savannah, Mo. Here father met Mary Frances Tritchler and they married April 4th, 1855.

Uncle Jake and Jake Spring, Susan's husband, got the west fever again. This time they went to Richardson county, Nebraska. Sabetha, Kansas, is the nearest good-sized town. Uncle Jake had three sons. His oldest son, Jake, is in a bank in Bern, Kansas. His other son, Charles, is a dentist in Larnard Kansas.

Uncle Fred's son, William, is a medical doctor and is situated in Los Lunas, New Mexico. His daughter, Elizabeth, is a music teacher in Los Angeles, California. His other daughter, Rachel, is a nurse in Chicago, Illinois, and is married to a Brown.

Uncle Gottlieb's son, Edward, was a medical doctor who served in the Spanish-American War. He also served in the World War as a doctor and after that he was never very well.

He died in Mountain Grove, Missouri, February 11, 1931. His widow, his son and daughter still live there.

Now to link up the past with the present. Following the general separation that occurred after grandfather's funeral, we find aunt Mary who was about fourteen, going to live with a family by the name of Ankney. They had one son which later married her and hence the long line of Ankney relationship. Uncle Rudolph was thirteen and was taken by a family by the name of Benfree. They had two girls and Rudolph later married the older of the two, Rachel. Rudy always spelled his name with one "t" and hence the beginning of Witwer line. Peter, who was only about seven at the time, was taken by a family that was very mean to him. He was required to do work much too hard for a boy his age and was not given enough to eat. It was said that he was never permitted to eat with the rest of the family. When the family had finished their meal they would call uncle Peter and after removing the meat, butter, and other better foods from the table, they would say "Now, Pete, eat sop." This sop was the broth or dip from the meat. This, with bread, made up the the majority of his meals. So brave was he, however, he never let out a whimper to any of his brothers or family when they came to visit him, or when he visited them for a few minutes. Finally he became so emaciated and sad that one of his brothers pryed into the situation and after spying on the hard master, took him from that family and put him with another by the name of Miller. This Miller family was Amish in their religion. So kind and gentle were they to him, that he was wholly taken up by them and finally joined the Amish faith and married the daughter of this family. These people, however, were descendants of "Pennsylvania Dutch" and spoke German. Uncle Peter who was too young to know how his name should be spelled, accepted the German spelling of Witver. These people spelled it the way it sounded. I visited them in 1919 and stayed quite a while. I noticed they spelled it Witver and I asked my cousin, "Why don't you tell your friends to spell his name Wittwer?" She answered it's Witver. So now there is a branch from the family tree by the name Witver. Uncle Pete had one son and four daughters.

The Descendants of John Wittwer, Sr.

This is to the best of my knowledge the dates when our grandparents came to America.

John Wittwer Sr. was born late in the seventeenth or early in the eighteenth century and married Susan Studdler. Both were born in Canton Bern, Switzerland.

Susan—birth unknown—died Feb. 7, 1914, in Portland, Oregon.

Jacob—born in 1825—died Nov. 11, 1897.

John Jr.—born Dec. 25, 1831—died Feb. 16, 1908.

Gottlieb—born July 29, 1834—died Oct. 19, 1909.

Mary—born July 20, 1836—died May 20, 1905.

Rudolph—born Nov. 5, 1837—died Feb. 22, 1895.

Fredrick—born July 19, 1841—died Jan. 1, 1909.

Christian—born July 19, 1841—died Jan. 21, 1927.

Peter—born Oct. 3, 1844—died Jan. 19, 1925.

Elizabeth—birth unknown—date of death unknown.
